Building Blocks of Success: What Can I Do with My Degree?

Our goal at Mortenson is to set every intern and new graduate up for success, no matter where your future in construction takes you. Whether in Minnesota or across the country, in the office or out in the field, we'll set you on the right path for a rewarding and impactful career.

If you have a degree in Electrical Engineering, for example, you can work with our Energy and Infrastructure business. If your focus has been on Civil Engineering, you can work in the field on one of our expansive construction projects—or in the office fostering communication and creating the plan between the office and the field. The possibilities are endless!

Or if you have a business-related degree, you could join our Finance and Accounting group to support the complex financial reach of the overall company. If you have a focus in Information Technology you can ensure our systems and network support our team members. If you have a focus in human resources, you can join our HR team to help provide competitive pay and benefits programs, learning and development opportunities, and assistance in navigating team member issues while placing new hires in the right place at the right time. At Mortenson, we believe that if we take care of our people, they will do great things. And great things mean great clients and even more innovation within the industry! These are just a few examples of how you can apply your background and skill set to help Mortenson build new and exciting structures and facilities for the advancement of modern society.
